

SUSSEX COUNTY MURDER TRIAL

Charles Randolph Stuart to be Tried This Week.

SLAYER OF MISS BOLLING

A Venire of Thirty Summoned From Section of County Far From Scene of Murder.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
TRUETT, VA., December 31.—On the third day of January, Charles Randolph Stuart, the Sussex county man, who has been locked up in the Petersburg jail for nearly four months, charged with the murder and burning of Miss Annie Bolling, near here on the 21st day of last June, will be put on trial for his life in the Circuit Court of Sussex county, before Judge J. F. West. Sussex County Court-house, where the trial will be had, is eight miles distant from the railway, the nearest accessible point from this city being Rocky Creek station, on the Atlantic Coast line, which is eight miles away.

It is not anticipated that serious difficulty will be encountered in securing a jury in the county, but the counsel for the prisoner may ask a change of venue, the feeling of the jury has been so strong. A venire of thirty has been summoned. It is believed that a jury can be secured in the other end of the county from that which the alleged crime occurred.

This entire portion of the State was brought to a high pitch of excitement over the dreadful murder of this helpless young woman, and when Stuart was taken and taken to Jarratt for a preliminary trial, people from far and near attended the trial, which consumed nearly two entire days.

On the 26th day of last June, Sunday morning, Mr. Spencer Crabb, upon getting up and going out to attend to the feeding of his stock, saw a lot of buzzards flying around near his place, and upon going to see what they were after, found the dead body of a young woman, with every particle of flesh eaten by dogs and buzzards, and burned to a crisp.

Mr. Crabb immediately notified the neighbors and went for the officers who came and summoned a jury of six men, who, after hearing the testimony of twenty or more witnesses, decided that the woman "who was positively identified as being the Bolling girl," came to her death at the hands of some person or persons, unknown to the jury.

This girl was a first cousin of Charles R. Stuart, and had lived at his house as one of his family for about three years before her death, and it is strange, but true, that only one of two of Stuart's nearest neighbors knew of the place since she first went there to live, and Mr. Stuart testified before the coroner's jury that he kept her locked up in her room at night.

He also stated other things about the girl which other neighbors of his immediate family denied before the coroner's jury. This girl was missing from Mr. Stuart's home on Tuesday, June 21st, and was not found until the following Sunday, June 23rd, and during that time he made no effort to find her, or to get any of the neighbors to help him find her. It was proven at the preliminary examination that all of some kind was on the scraps of clothing found near the body of the dead woman.

These scraps of cloth, are now in possession of the coroner, and his immediate family denied before the coroner's jury. This girl was missing from Mr. Stuart's home on Tuesday, June 21st, and was not found until the following Sunday, June 23rd, and during that time he made no effort to find her, or to get any of the neighbors to help him find her. It was proven at the preliminary examination that all of some kind was on the scraps of clothing found near the body of the dead woman.

Mr. Stuart, at the coroner's inquest, claimed he left home on that Tuesday the girl was missing, at a little after 12 o'clock, to go on one of his neighbors to see him on some business, before he went to work, the distance to be traveled not being over one and one-half miles, but the members of the neighbor's family said Mr. Stuart arrived there at exactly half-past 2 o'clock, and left at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Nannie Chandler, friend of the accused, and a splendid woman, is one of the main witnesses for the prosecution; also Mrs. Anna E. Bolling, of Darville, Dinwiddie county, mother of the dead girl. The Commonwealth has in all about twenty-five witnesses, while it is not known how many will be for the defense.

This trial which has been postponed twice before for various reasons, will be a very interesting one, and will be largely attended.

Mr. R. H. Mann, of Petersburg, and Mr. J. B. Person, of Jarratt, will appear in behalf of the accused, while Mr. J. F. Buford, of Lawrenceville, Va., will aid in the prosecution, and every inch of ground taken by either side will be strongly contested by the other.

This is one of the few cases where the accused is believed to be guilty by everyone, and even by some of his family, but he wants to see him have a fair and impartial trial, and if it is proven beyond a doubt that he is innocent, those supposed to be his enemies will be glad to see him vindicated of this terrible charge now standing against him.

Messrs. Mann and Person, with the county surgeon of Dinwiddie, was up at the scene of the homicide, several days ago, and made a survey of the route supposed to have been taken by Stuart in going and returning from Mr. Gray's, the neighbor above mentioned, on the Tuesday day the girl disappeared. The proceedings of this trial will be sent direct from the courthouse at the close of each day to The Times-Dispatch.

Messrs. Mann and Person, with the county surgeon of Dinwiddie, was up at the scene of the homicide, several days ago, and made a survey of the route supposed to have been taken by Stuart in going and returning from Mr. Gray's, the neighbor above mentioned, on the Tuesday day the girl disappeared. The proceedings of this trial will be sent direct from the courthouse at the close of each day to The Times-Dispatch.

GIGANTIC BIRD, BIG AS A CONDOR

A Magnificent Specimen of Unknown Species in America.

WINGED AND CAPTURED

The Noble Bird Is Little Injured and Eats a Rabbit With Fierceness.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

OLGA, VA., Dec. 31.—On the day before yesterday, as Mr. C. A. Holman and Frank Jackson were setting out for a quail hunt, very soon after leaving home they discovered an immense bird perched upon a large oak, strange to them. Consultation ensued, exchange of size shot in the guns took place, and measures agreed upon to get a shot at the bird.

The younger man took a detour around the other man approached, with the hope for result that the bird would fly within reach of the man who had gone around. The outcome was in accordance with the hope, and Mr. Jackson got in two wing shots, the first one staggering the second one bringing to the ground the immense bird.

Your correspondent, who has seen most of the specimens of stuffed, taxidermized and live birds in the ornithological exhibits of the United States, saw the bird an hour or two after, and pronounced this the largest and finest he had ever seen, approaching in size, but exceeding in beauty, the condor of the Andes.

It is of the eagle family, but greatly larger than the bald or golden eagle, of which the beauty chiefly speaks. As yet, the bird is an hour or two after, and pronounced this the largest and finest he had ever seen, approaching in size, but exceeding in beauty, the condor of the Andes.

FORTUNE FAVORED THIS GREAT BANK

The Merchants National of Richmond, a Gibraltar of Finance.

STRONGEST IN THE STATE

Total Resources in Excess of $5,000,000—Prosperous and Progressive.

Richmond has long been regarded as the metropolis of the South Atlantic States. Its commerce penetrates nearly every State in the Union. Its financial institutions are reputed abroad and at home as Gibbaltars of finance. So solid are these institutions, so able and conservative are their managements, that Richmond enjoys the unique distinction of having had fewer bank failures than any city of corresponding size and financial influence. First and foremost among the substantial banks in this city, stands the Merchants National Bank, a veritable adamant in the commercial world of the South.

This prosperous and progressive bank was founded in 1870. The most influential spirit in the foundation work was Thomas Branch, its first president. Fortune favored this new venture from the start, and in master hands of finance it passed through several critical periods of our commercial history, only to find itself more securely entrenched in the confidence of the banking public, until today, development demonstrates it the strongest national bank in the State, its deposits being somewhat in excess of $5,000,000. Not only is this, but the total resources show an increase in excess of $1,000,000 during the past year.

Deposits likewise show an increase of $1,000,000, and that, too, in spite of the fact that the United States government has withdrawn $500,000 of its deposits during the period covering the increase.

The withdrawal by the government was on account of its expenditure in the interest of the Panama Canal. This is a remarkable exhibit, and speaks volumes in praise of the able financiers who so administered the affairs of the Merchants National Bank with the conservatism, progressiveness and liberality as to make such results possible.

The men who are directly responsible for the achievements and eminence attained by the Merchants National Bank are John P. Branch, president, son of Mr. Thomas Branch, the founder; John Kerr, Branch vice-president; John T. Gibbs, cashier. On March 1, 1904, the bank had assumed such proportions that it was deemed advisable to appoint three assistant cashiers, as follows: Mr. J. R. Forde, Mr. Thomas B. McAdams, and Mr. George H. Keese.

The bank's business is not confined to the State, but extends to all parts of the United States, so to speak, in the financial world, and its reputation as a means is more than State-wide. It is such financiers who act as custodians of the funds entrusted to the Merchants National Bank, to be strictly upon the merits of the proposed investment, and business as conducted and the promise made to the depositor.

A general banking business is transacted, such as deposits, subject to check, negotiating loans, discounting business paper, and commercial collections. It has special facilities for handling southern business, and these are unexcelled, and enable this bank to offer exceptional advantages to customers. In fact, the Merchants National has for a long time been perfecting arrangements to expedite and otherwise facilitate out-of-town business, and to-day its management offers its customers in making collections and other business, that it can give the best service at a minimum cost. It is the largest depository for banks between Baltimore and New Orleans, and is also City, State and United States depository. It also has a substantial and capacious burglar-proof vault, fitted with safety deposit boxes.

The savings department was established January 1, 1904, by Mr. Thomas B. McAdams, one of the recently appointed assistant cashiers. So popular has it become with the public that the management has determined to enlarge its scope and elaborate quarters have been fitted up in the bank building for the exclusive use of the savings department. This branch will be placed under the immediate control of Mr. R. T. Minor, Jr., the present second teller, who will take charge on the 1st of February. One feature of the savings bank is the addition of the popularity is the three per cent interest allowed, all balances being withdrawable on demand. The total deposits in this department are daily showing a remarkable increase, evidencing the fact that there is room for a good savings bank of undoubted strength, and in Richmond, next week to meet the board of governors, when programs and artists for the next festival will be decided upon. Mr. Stewart writes that the prospect to have an attractive scheme to offer.

Mr. Mercer has completed arrangements to put the children's chorus into active rehearsal in the course of a week. A comprehensive prospectus of all the programs and artists will soon be issued.

Eats Rabbit Fiercely.

Up to this writing the bird is still alive, looks fierce, ate a rabbit on yesterday, and seems to be not much hurt. All of injury in sight is the broken tip of one wing. What a pity that this noble and beautiful bird is not in some of our large zoos. There is nothing like it that I have seen in New York or Chicago. Whence he came and whether he was brought by a hunter, he could easily have taken and carried off a sheep.

The Wednesday Club.

The Wednesday Club will resume regular rehearsals next Tuesday night at the Young Men's Christian Association Hall. All members are expected to be in their places, and all the singers of the city are cordially invited. The rehearsal of Haydn's "The Seasons" will soon be completed, and the club will enter upon its mystery. He could easily have taken and carried off a sheep.

Mr. George W. Stewart, manager of the Boston Festival Orchestra, will be in Richmond next week to meet the board of governors, when programs and artists for the next festival will be decided upon. Mr. Stewart writes that the prospect to have an attractive scheme to offer.

Hurley—Lavender.

Miss Mary Lavender, of Lynchburg, Va., and Mr. William H. Hurley, of No. 2203 Fairmount Avenue, were married Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the parlors of the Rev. Father McKeefry, of St. Patrick's Church. The bride is a resident of Lynchburg, but is quite well known in Fairmount, where she has frequently visited friends. Mr. Hurley has just returned from Bluefield, W. Va., where he has been employed for the last year.

The newly wedded pair will make their home for the present with the parents of the groom, on the avenue. The bride was beautifully attired in a traveling suit of steel gray cloth, with hat and gloves to match, and carried bride's roses.

Mr. Edward Hay was best man, and Mr. Joseph Hurley, where an elegant reception was given. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Gary, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. Minion, Misses Mabel Pollard, Edith Williams, Mamie Hurley, Hope Kidd, Mamie Kuhn, Miss Miles, Messrs. Ross Verlander, Samuel Flournoy, Fred Williams, of St. Louis, Louie Miles, of Montreal, Canada, and many others.
